

The Western Wine-Press of Shivta

The image shows a high-angle view of several ancient, rectangular stone wine press cells. Each cell is constructed from large, roughly-hewn, light-brown stone blocks. The interior of each cell is paved with smaller, flat stone slabs, some of which are dark and appear to be stained or covered in residue. The cells are arranged in a grid-like pattern, with narrow passages between them. The overall scene is one of archaeological excavation, with the surrounding ground being dry and sandy. The text "Wine-Press – The Cells" is overlaid in the center of the image, underlined.

Wine-Press – The Cells

Wine-Press

The Treading Floor

Wine-Press

The Collecting Vat